By the time you finish with the puzzles, Diane brings a tray filled with refreshments - tea and scones.

“Oh my darling, you treat me so well. Is the tea... soporific?” says Victor, quirking his eyebrow.

“Get away, you drunken sod! Put your own whiskey in your tea for once. Heavens to horcrux!”

Victor looks suitably chastened. He takes a cup of tea and returns to the Dining Room, unscrewing the lid from his hip flask as he does so.

“Sinful old chap, but he’s harmless. Look, I have something to show you.”

She leads you around the corridor, looking over her shoulder. When you reach the middle of the Western wall of the Study, she stops and hands you a carved wooden box with an intriguing design on the lid.

“This is Mr. Bodwell’s last will and testament. I was to give it to our lawyers, but I thought you should take a look at it. Wouldn’t put it past these greedy friends of his to kill him for his money, you know.”

Unsurprisingly, the box’s contents are not a simple legal document. There’s a missive from a scientific board, a superhero comic, and a children’s book set in an English day school. Hopefully you can piece this all together and find what’s missing...
