

Epilogue

Dou fall to your knees. In one hand you still clasp your totem, an odd little 32-sided hedron. But the other is now wrapped around your face, gripping your mask, completely beyond your control as it begins to pull away.

The mask slips off at the bottom, giving you a glimpse of the rough emerald-green stone beneath. Its strange angles and uncanny glow are immediately dizzying, and you throw your obedient hand to the ground to stop yourself from toppling over. As you do, you glimpse one of the smaller faces of your totem...

The Meta puzzle has not yet been solved! Since we'd still like teams to get to solve it, we have supplied a hint and are allowing for teams to continue guessing for the next 24 hours. Since the Solve page is no longer active, please submit your guesses to the SUMS email, sums@maths.usyd.edu.au. All teams have ten attempts (even those who have already used some during the hunt - the number of guesses for all teams is being "reset" to ten), and these may be submitted individually or in bulk. We will try to respond as soon as possible, but there'll likely be a lull during the night.