Act III
Scene 3

Transmutation

Author: Sean Gardiner

The tune seems to have worked since the obstacle is now rolling over, ever so slowly. You squeeze past and walk into the building that signifies the start of the expressway.

A yellow-striped meerkat watches you as you pull out your bike once more, preparing for the long journey ahead. This time, Mezza seems to have decided to perch on the handlebars in front of you. You find this adorable, but it does make steering a little tricky, so you signal to Mezza that another position would be preferable. Mezza lets out a cry of disappointment, and promptly returns to its prior position atop your head.

You speed down the expressway, swerving every now and then in an attempt to avoid other cyclists. You're not in the mood for confrontation right now, so you try to keep your eyes on the road and avoid making any eye contact.

That's when you notice that the road you've been riding on has been drawn all over...
